

“America deserves answers and it deserves them now.□ Goldman Sachs needs to account for its role in the financial crisis and stop playing games with the Inquiry Commission.”

For Immediate Release: June 8, 2010

Contact: Emily Barocas/202-225-7295

Larson Slams Goldman Sachs For Not Cooperating with Inquiry Commission

Washington, D.C. – Congressman John B. Larson (CT-01), Chairman of the House Democratic Caucus, released the following statement after Phil Angelides, Chair of the Financial Crisis Inquiry Commission said that Goldman Sachs was not cooperating with their inquiry.

“America deserves answers and it deserves them now.□ Goldman Sachs needs to account for its role in the financial crisis and stop playing games with the Inquiry Commission.□ Complete and forthright disclosure and thorough answers to the Commission’s questions must be forthcoming or the Congress must intervene to ensure cooperation.”

###